

THE STORY: Holly Dunahill is worried when a Latin beauty Carmelita Hernandez sets out to land her love, Steve Tracy, the writer, as a husband. Holly's own efforts to be attractive to Steve have a not result of winning the attention of Jose Montero, Carmelita's suitor.

"A MAPOLA DEL NORTH," Holly Dunahill repeated after Jose Montero. "What does that mean?" She moved away from him toward the fountain which was splashing its spray into a mosaic of petals.

"A king of flowers, senorita," Jose Montero followed her, and stood close beside her. "But it is not so beautiful as you, Senorita—you who are so pale and lovely."

For one who didn't know the language, she thought with a touch of amusement, Jose was doing quite well. She wished it could have been Steve out there with her, and she sighed involuntarily. Jose heard the sigh and smiled. "I heard the sigh and smiled," he said. "I caught her to him, sweetly."

"You sigh! The language of love, senorita! It needs no words!" He kissed her several times, and although she struggled, she was unable to discover that the moonlight and the scented tropical night and her lonely yearning for Steve had broken down her defenses. Jose was handsome, handsome in the dashing Latin way so dangerously attractive to a girl.

"I do you," he murmured, between kisses. "Marry me—tomorrow!" She stopped him, finally, flushed and breathless. "Please—Senor!" she gasped. "I—I hardly know you! Why, I met you less than half an hour ago! And besides— I thought you and Carmelita Hernandez—"

"Ah!" he cried, and his face was radiant with joy. "So you have known of me! To be in your thoughts, Senorita! It is an overwhelming honor! But the Senorita Hernandez and I—it is true, Senor Hernandez, her father arranged a betrothal. But now—now she is to become affianced to the handsome American del Norte, The Senor Blanche Tracey. You came here to be with him—no?"

"No," said Holly, confused at first by the Latinizing of Steve's first name. Then, "I work for him. I am down here as his paid secretary. But I happen to know that he does not intend to marry the Senorita Hernandez."

"It does not matter," he said soothingly. "Do not be jealous, Amapolita. The American is handsome, yes, but let Carmelita have him. Do you not have me?"

"Please take me inside," Holly said, desperately. In another moment she would either laugh hysterically or lose her temper and slap his face as Carmelita had slapped Steve's.

"But I shall see you again?" he begged, softly. "Soon? Yes?" "I'm afraid—no," she said, gently.

He sighed. "It will be but the sweeter for the waiting," he said. She was glad Steve met them at the door. "My dancer, I think," he said.

SHE was conscious of his questioning eyes upon her as he swung her out on the floor, and conscious too of the flush in her cheeks, and suspected there was a brightness in her eyes. After all it was thrilling to be made love to so tempestuously by a handsome man.

"Was that horrible annoying you?" he whispered after a moment. "He told me he admired me, that my hair is beautiful, and he asked me for a date," she told him, feeling it might be wise to hold back the rest. "That is hardly annoying. It is very flattering." He looked down at her with a puzzled expression. "Well, sure. Your hair is beautiful," he said. She sighed. "He's a tropical heat wave on feet!" she breathed.

"And he's engaged to Carmelita," he reminded her, sharply, "and he can have her, and Heaven's blessings be upon them."

"Not any more. Papa's making an arrangement with you which will leave Jose free to marry me." "Well, isn't that big of him!"

SHE noticed before she glanced away, that he was looking at her differently. At first, back there on the dock that first day, he had regarded her as an embarrassing mistake, an annoying blunder. Then he thought of her as an efficient employee. Now, suddenly he was looking at her as a beautiful girl to be danced with, perhaps to be taken out in the moonlight.

The music stopped and he let her go abruptly. "You fell for him!" he flung at her bitterly. "Any guy with a line!"

After the dance they all went down to the dock to see the ship set out for the open sea, through the bobbing stems of discarded bananas which floated on the black and silver water like some weird, aquatic plants. Then they went back to the plantation house which was heavenly quiet and peaceful now, and there they could sleep as long as they wished undisturbed by chugging engine, snoring trucks, and shouting banana pickers.

The next morning Holly was in the study before Steve finished his coffee. She looked up at his article for the wanted to read again what he had said about Jose Montero. The book-type file which contained his manuscript carboys was misplaced on the shelf which struck her as odd. But when she found the article she found something even more strange. The sheets were tucked under the staple at one corner, and when she glanced through them she discovered that one had been ripped loose, leaving a jaggedly torn corner under the staple.

College Merger Plans Discussed

Little Rock, Sept. 10 (AP)—Plans for merger of the College of the Ozarks and Arkansas college were to be discussed at a meeting of the Arkansas Presbyterian conference here today.

The committee is composed of representatives of Arkansas (U. S.) and Little Rock (U. S.) colleges.

which controls Arkansas college at Batesville, and the Arkansas Presbyterian of the synod of Oklahoma (U. S. A.), which controls Ozarks at Clarksville.

Dr. Marion A. Boggs of Little Rock, chairman of the committee, said the purpose of the meeting is to draft final recommendations on the proposed merger.

The committee recommended the merger last July. It also suggested that the new institution be named the College of the Ozarks and be located at Batesville.

Trustees of Ozarks have termed the plan "impractical."

whose testimony differed. One said he heard machinegun fire. The other said he heard a loud explosion and saw a bright flash.

The U. N. investigators went to great lengths to determine the direction from which the bullets came and the angle at which they struck.

They used a carpenter's level, a protractor, a ruler and a long string. They said the angles ranged from 32 to 50 degrees from horizontal.

On one occasion they climbed a roof top to examine broken tile and marks.

Some Action on Truman's Plea Is Predicted

Washington, Sept. 10 (AP)—President Truman's appeal for speedy revision of the new economic controls law may get some first round action in the senate banking committee today.

In advance of a closed meeting of the group, Chairman Maybank (D-S.C.) told reporters he would call for a vote—without further public hearings—on repeal or change of two provisions denounced by Mr. Truman.

A decision regarding two others the President wants repealed may be delayed pending further study, Maybank said.

Mr. Truman signed the new controls measure July 31, but he sharply criticized it as inadequate to curb inflation. In a special message Aug. 23, he asked congress to scrap sections of the law which:

1. Allow sellers to pass on to consumers virtually all cost increases which occurred between the start of the Korean war and last July 26. The President has dubbed that provision an "economic booby trap" and "the terrible Capchert amendment." Senator Capchert (R-Ind.) has said four Democrats and one other Republican joined him in drafting the measure.

2. Require the fixing of price ceilings at levels which assure wholesalers and retailers the same percentage margin of profit they earned before the Korean war. Mr. Truman said that provision, sponsored by Rep. Herland (D-Fla.) invites America's 2,000,000 distributors to become commission salesmen for inflation.

3. Prohibit use of livestock slaughter controls. That section was sponsored by Senator Hugh Butler (R-Meb) and Rep. Hope (R-Kan.), who contended the slaughter control program the government had in effect would encourage meat black markets. Mr. Truman said it opens the way for black marketers to "muscle in."

4. Require under certain conditions, import controls on fats and oils, cheese, butter and other dairy products and peanuts and rice. The President said this provision runs counter to the national policy of reciprocal trade agreements.

Maybank said he would move to send to the senate floor an administration-backed proposal to repeal the provision known as the Capchert amendment. Although Mr. Truman asked for repeal, Maybank has offered a compromise designed to give price control officials more discretion and to ease the administrative load.

Capchert said he is willing to study "any reasonable modification." But that he still thinks the current version is entirely fair because it provides for price roll-backs as well as justified price increases.

Maybank said he also would move for committee approval today of an amendment to repeal the import controls section to handle that separately a little later—perhaps after some public hearings.

As for the Herland amendment requiring pre-Korean percentage margins of profit, Maybank said that because it originated in the house he was not inclined to urge his committee to act on it before

Hurricanes Break Power, Bermuda Saved

Miami, Fla. Sept. 10 (AP)—The two Atlantic hurricanes, their power broken by an encounter that saved Bermuda which had been over open water today, far from any major land area.

The unique meeting of the two great tropical storms knocked one of them, "Easy," off a heading course to Bermuda as the British island braced for a 160-mile-an-hour blow.

"Easy" was churning northward at eight miles an hour toward Bermuda when the smaller, faster-traveling hurricane, "Fox," sped across its path. "Easy" ground to a stop then swung sharply eastward to by-pass cringing Bermuda on the south.

This strange brushing of the hurricanes, the first in Miami weather bureau records, knocked much of the steam out of the big twisters. "Easy's" wind velocity fell to 100 miles per hour. The "Fox's" winds dropped from 100 to 80 miles an hour.

Then the two sped swiftly away from the scene. The forward movement of the "Fox" increased to 10 miles an hour and when last reported at 9 p. m. (EST) it was a thousand miles northeast of Bermuda. "Easy" was 230 miles east of Bermuda and traveling north-eastward at 20 to 25 miles an hour.

"Bermuda was saved from one of the house banking committee studied the President's requests. That group has not fixed a time for such study.

A hidden ingredient in your country's aerial defense...

The flashing jet that's a symbol of America's aerial defense is created with the help of natural gas. The finished airplane shows no visible signs of the hot gas flames that are needed to make its special metals, its radar, its radio, its machine guns and its tough outer skin. The hidden ingredient of natural gas is there, however. It goes into the building of tough fighting machines whose striking power is needed in our defense against aggression.

Here in your county, hidden underground, are Texas Eastern's pipe lines that carry natural gas for your country's aerial defense. Although hidden, they produce visible benefits in your county. Because they are owned and operated as a private enterprise, the lines have brought additional income to the county in taxes, purchases, and payrolls. They have also brought another asset in the form of the "good citizenship" of their employees.

Miss Arkansas Is 4th, Utah Girl Is First

Atlantic City, N.J., Sept. 10 (AP). — The 143-pound, five foot 10 Miss America of 1952 is a Sunday school teacher who doesn't smoke or drink.

Blue-eyed blonde Colleen Kay Hutchins of Salt Lake City Utah, didn't believe it when she was chosen over 50 other contestants to climax this resort city's five-day annual beauty pageant Saturday night.

"I thought I was too darned tall," the statuesque beauty said in a poised cultured voice that reflects her dramatic training.

At 25, she is the oldest to wear the crown and matches the record height of Miss America of 1945, Bess Myerson of New York City. Colleen is the first blonde to win the title in 13 years.

She is not bothered by the pageant rule that she cannot marry for the next year. Although she says boy friends have been no problem despite her height, there is no one special at the moment. A chance at serious drama is her goal but Colleen thinks that marriage and a career do mix. She won the judges' eyes capturing a pageant preliminary with a selection from Maxwell Anderson's "Elizabeth the Queen."

They liked the way she put words

Mr. Robert Lyle, of Nashville, Mr. Earl Smith, of Prescott, and Mr. M. D. Lawyer, of Waldo, were Sunday afternoon visitors in Hope and attended the dedication of the Church of Christ.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Berry of Gibeland, Louisiana, spent the week-end with Mrs. Berry's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Collins. They were accompanied home by their little daughter, Cathy, who spent the past week with her grandparents.

together and upon taking a second look, liked the way Colleen's 143 pounds were put together over her stately frame. She measures 36 inches at the bust and hips and tapers down to a mere 24 inches at the waist.

The same bust, hips and waist were measured on Mrs. Penny Duncan of New York City yesterday at Asbury park when she won the title of Mrs. America.

The queen of the married lovelies is also a blonde, is three years younger than Miss America, two and one-half inches shorter and weighs 128. Mrs. Duncan is the wife of a student and the mother of a two-year-old son.

Before becoming Miss America, Colleen won the titles of Miss Utah, Sweetheart of Sigma Chi, Miss Armed Forces of Utah, Miss University of Utah and was homecoming queen at Brigham Young university.

She worked as a life guard this summer while vacationing from her graduate studies in speech and dramatics at the University of Utah. She is a good enough swimmer to have entered the national AAU backstroke race in 1947.

One of her four brothers, Mel Hutchins, starred in football and basketball at Brigham Young last year. The children, including two the Mormon faith by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh A. Hutchins of Arcadia, Calif.

Miss America admits to needing a can opener as far as cooking and concerned but boasts that she makes most of her clothes. She is not expected to have much time for that in the next year of personal appearances.

The Miss America title gives her a $5,000 scholarship, numerous at the $30,000 earnings chalked up gifts including a car and a chance by last year's queen Miss Yolande Botzbe of Mobile, Ala.

Runners-up to Miss America in the order they placed were Miss Indiana, Carol Mitchell of Rochester, Miss North Carolina, Lu Long Ogburn of Smithfield; Miss Arkansas, Charlotte Simmen of Little Rock, and Miss Florida, Mary Elizabeth Godwin of Gainesville.

DOROTHY DIX

Don't Marry A Drunkard

Dear Miss Dix: Several times in your column I've read letters from girls asking your advice as to whether they should marry a man who drinks excessively. I cry out loud, "No!"

How I wish I could write a book for all young girls to read on "My Life as a Drunkard's Wife!" For 21 years I've been married to one. He lives only for the next drink.

We live a life apart in interests, having nothing in common. Even the children's special events go by unnoticed. His idea of an evening out is sitting hours in a tavern. We make no plans together. He comes home abusively drunk two or three nights a week. He loses time from work, has lost several jobs and stays away nights at a time. I've lost all affection I ever had for him. I only fight to keep the home together until my six children are grown men and women. Then only will I be relieved of my burden.

REGRET
Answer: The saddest letters that come to my desk are from wives like this, whose husbands are excessive and abusive drinkers. There is no remedy to offer them — no consolation, no hope. Even the splendid services of Alcoholics Anonymous can do nothing for a man who has no desire to help himself. Content to go his sordid way, losing the love of his family, the respect of his friends, sinking lower and lower in the abyss of moral disintegration, he is beyond any mortal aid.

Marriage Won't Reform Him
For the disaster to befall a woman after marriage is bad enough but for any girl knowingly to marry a heavy drinker is folly at its worst. Promises to reform after marriage are utterly unreliable. A man who wishes, in good faith, to overcome this or any other bad habit will do so before he assumes the responsibility of a family.

Many, in fact, I'll go so far as to say most disastrous marriages are the result of lack of foresight in these matters. A fickle unreliable beau seldom turns into a faithful husband, matrimony will not turn a lying sinner into a truthful mate. The essential basic virtues of good living are present in the single state or not there at all! Minor faults, of course can be cured or at any rate endured, but a man with a fundamental weakness of character is a poor risk for a life partner.

Dear Miss Dix: I am in love with a boy a year older than I. We want to get married but my fiance's mother has forbidden it. She says if we marry she'll have it annulled. Don't you think it's about time she let her son live his own life? For seven months she has done everything to try to break us up and says if we get married we won't be welcome in her home.

LOUELLA
Answer: You don't give your age but I gather you're both quite young since your fiance needs his mother's consent to marry. Probably the extreme youth of both of you is her only objection, so why not wait until you are of age? Her attitude then may soften. Marriage remember is an adult responsibility and you will be much better equipped to handle complexities if you wait a few years and acquire more education.

Dear Miss Dix: I am engaged to a service man and have waited almost a year for him to come home. He now has a furlough coming up and thinks he should go see his mother before coming to see me. I think I should come first. We live in different states. What is right?

C. A. G.
Answer: My answer will probably bring a roar of protest from every girl who has a boy friend in service, but since you are engaged not married, your friend's first visit should be to his mother. Soon you will be first in everything — do not you think these last few considerations belong to her?

25,000 Reds Killed in Recent Weeks

U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Sept. 10 (AP). — Gen. James A. Van Fleet Eighth Army commander, said today 25,000 Reds were killed or wounded in the recent "battle of the hills" in eastern Korea.

The scrappy general said in an interview: "It was butchery. War is business over here to destroy their troops as fast as they rush in and that's exactly what happened in those hills.

The spirit of Allied troops fighting in rugged terrain is high the general declared.

He said one company alone accounted for 800 Chinese casualties. "And it was" — the Chinese were all around it. But our men were having such a field day shooting them down that they didn't want to pull out.

"The greatest experience — that's what General MacArthur called it once — is to be in battle and know you are the better man."

Troublesome Times for the Little Man

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Sept. 10 — (AP) — The little man, watching his world go to pot, was unhappy inside. Puzzled. He picked up his kid's book. The kid was in bed. He wanted to see what they teach kids nowadays.

He started to read it. Not reading. Skimming. His mind wasn't on it. Why were things going to pot? The whole world seemed to be running headfirst into war and no one would stop it.

Instead of getting better things were getting worse. Every day in the papers he saw pictures of diplomats arriving some place, doing some place, getting on a plane, getting off a plane. The air was full of diplomats but things were getting worse.

He didn't know much about international things. He was just a working guy. He paid taxes. And the taxes paid the salaries of the diplomats so they could spend full time on international stuff. They were working for him.

And in every country it was the same. Every country was full of diplomats and every country was full of little working guys who paid taxes so they could have diplomats.

He was always impressed by the diplomats. He saw diplomats and everybody's. He felt inferior to them. They must have something special or they wouldn't be diplomate. And the nice clothes. The polite faces. The elegant manners. And when they spoke he liked to listen. They sounded so educated. And they used such big words.

He turned a page and now a story about the king's clothes. That sounded down to earth. He figured he'd read this one through. Two men who came to town told the king they could make wonderful clothes full of magic, because only intelligent people could see them while the stupid people could look and see nothing at all.

They scampered around the royal palace, making garments like fairy tales when they're spreading out fancy. The king looked but for the life of him he couldn't see anything. He didn't dare say so. It would be frightful if he was found to be stupid.

So he said the clothes were marvelous. He ordered a beautiful robe. He took off his old clothes and the two men helped him dress in what they said was the finest suit in the lot. Then he had an idea.

He'd walk down the street in his new clothes and in that way he'd find out who was stupid in his kingdom. But a servant who had been listening sneaked out and spread the word about the clothes and what the two men said. Stupid people couldn't see them.

The whole town turned out and when the king appeared everyone said "oh and such and such words like wonderful until a little child, too young to know about stupidity, said: 'What he was expect to say, cried: 'Oh mama look. The king has no clothes on.'"

The little guy read the last line again and suddenly he felt better. If only for a moment, and not at all inferior to the diplomats anymore, for he thought:

"Diplomats ain't nothing special. We only pretend it is. It's just nations trying to make a deal and every time nations get together each one wants to get the best for himself."

But nations are only people. So everybody everywhere is mixed up in all this, since we like the diplomats to work out the deals. We're all horse-traders, instead of horse men we're making deals in land, guns, armies, alien, trans-frontiers. Things like that. And diplomats are just a bunch of horse-traders who want to college."

The little man, who began to feel and again, thought: I wish all the people everywhere could get together and, while they were, all trading and squabbling and may-

Nevada County Fair Features

New Attractions
As plans for the Nevada County Fair on September 19-21 near completion a number of added attractions are revealed. To Supplement the usual agenda, a Community Summer open to the public will be held Wednesday night, 8 p.m. September 19 and for Thursday night the fairgrounds will vibrate in the time of an Old Fiddlers and String Band contest. This latter event will be open to the area and prizes will be offered.

The Big States Carnival from Texas, a new show for the district promises a clean line of attractions with new and safe equipment. Posters announcing this attraction which will run the entire week are now being distributed. Under present plans the carnival will be located in the southeast corner where the City and County Officials have traveled a midway in case of unfavorable weather. This will prevent the ballgrounds from being damaged and also leaves such area be knocking one another down. I wish a little child would say:

for special events, horse show, etc.

The parade and sports contest will be a highlight of the major event, and naturally a great deal of effort will be needed to equal and surpass the success that these fair days attained in the last year's event. Contest work as to these events will begin within a few days.

Schools throughout the county have been contacted as to participating in the School Contest which is on the 19th-21st and in an additional contest of school teachers. To complete these plans will be completed during a meeting to be conducted in the near future.

Gromyko Heads Home Following Big Defeat

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

San Francisco, Sept. 10 — (AP) — Andrei Gromyko is going home from the San Francisco conference with Russia's worst postwar diplomatic defeat on his record — and with ammunition in his pocket for a new working campaign against the Japanese peace treaty.

American diplomats, winding up their affairs in the conference city today, predicted Russia will do its utmost to undermine popular support for the treaty with a massive propaganda attack throughout Asia and the Far East.

Gromyko, who left by train for New York yesterday, prepared the ammunition for that assault in his speeches and actions at the peace conference, notably by his charges of American "dictation" and his repeated forecasts of a "new era" in the near future. He also made much of the Chinese exclusion.

At some point, furthermore, it is considered probably that Russia will not forth, in collaboration with China, planned for a separate Communist bloc peace treaty with Japan. Presumably this would embody provisions which Gromyko advanced here in his vain efforts to get the British-American sponsored pact rewritten.

Forty-eight nations signed the treaty. The number of nations enrolled at the University of Arkansas.

Miss Artie Gee, who has been at the home in Little Rock, has arrived to be at home with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. S. B. Gee. She is at the bed side of her mother, who is recovering from surgery at Texarkana Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. John Arch McCaskill and son John Jr. of Orange, Texas, have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joe T. Smith.

Credit Women Name Officers

Hot Springs, Sept. 10 — (AP) — Miss Edna Short of Fort Smith yesterday was elected president of the Credit Women's Breakfast club of Arkansas. She succeeds Miss Hazel Kelly of Fayetteville.

The organization is meeting in conjunction with the Arkansas credit association and the association of credit bureaus of Arkansas in the 27th annual conference here. The conference ends tonight.

Other officers are Miss Iva Gilgiving, Texarkana, first vice president; Miss Jessie Fox, Little Rock, secretary, and Miss Eva Stauek, Jonesboro, treasurer.

peace treaty with Japan in a 63-minute ceremony Saturday. For three tense days of debate Gromyko had tried to get acceptance of amendments which would have rendered Japan defenseless when the treaty becomes effective.

But when the document was put on the table for signing the United States scored a clean sweep. Not one nation was held back by Gromyko's arguments. The number of pre-conference American estimate of perhaps 44 signers.

State department officials were especially pleased that both Pakistan and Indonesia accepted the treaty; they had been uncertain and their influence in Asia is of great importance. Offsetting this gain is the fact that India, with great Asian prestige, did not attend.

However, the Indian mission in Tokyo announced yesterday India is ready to end its state of war with Japan when the treaty becomes effective.

Quickly following up the peace pact, which will enable Japan to rearm and take collective security measures, Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Japanese Premier Shigeru Yoshida, concluded a defense treaty in a 14-minute signing ceremony at San Francisco's Presidio late Saturday.

Robinson and Turpin Are Both Confident

By MURRAY ROSE

Grossinger, N. Y., Sept. 10 — (AP) — If Sugar Ray Robinson intends to come out swinging against Middleweight Champion Randy Turpin on Wednesday night there will be plenty of early fireworks at the Polo Grounds.

"I shall be ready to meet him if he does that," said the cool, superbly conditioned Briton who rarely takes a backward step. "I feel confident of winning."

Robinson apparently has every intention of ending the 15-rounder as quickly as possible. In most of his training maneuvers, he has been firing from a flat-footed stance and with plenty of power.

A close friend of Sugar Ray said "he's going to get that guy quick or they're going to have to carry Ray out of there. He wants that little back more than anything else in the world."

"Robinson had better get him early, if he's ever going to get him," said Barney Ross, the former welterweight champion who has watched most of Turpin's workouts in this catfight mountain resort.

"This kid is in wonderful condition," said Ross, after the sturdy, 23-year-old invader boxed nine rounds yesterday. "He coasted all the way, didn't take a deep breath and sweated freely. He looked good to me. I give Robinson a chance in the first five rounds. If it goes beyond five rounds, this kid will climb all over him. I give him a chance to stop it."

130 MORE CASUALTIES

Proper Planning NOW

WILL KEEP OUT the "COLD AIR" GREMLINS this WINTER! . . .

Can You Answer These "Home Heating" Questions

Is the moisture in your home a result of using Natural Gas?

Not if proper Natural Gas appliances are used. Any type of heating appliance will cause moisture in the room if not properly vented.

Do unvented gas heating appliances generally cause sweating?

Yes. The combination of Natural Gas and air to form combustion produces a certain amount of moisture which proper venting will carry off, thus eliminating the sweating of walls, windows and furniture due to improper venting.

Does the cooking of foods on the kitchen range increase the moisture content of the air in the home?

Yes. But modern kitchens are designed to eliminate moisture and heat so that other parts of the house are not bothered. This is true regardless of the type of kitchen appliances you use.

Does mechanical clothes drying increase moisture content of the air in the house?

Yes. If not properly vented. A properly vented clothes dryer is the only known method of drying to keep this moisture out of the air in the home.

Should you have an evenly heated home?

Authorities generally agree that an evenly heated home contributes greatly to health.

Are most homes properly heated?

No. Many people think one large heater will do the job. Most homes are not built to allow free circulation of warmed air throughout the house. For a comfortable home, free of moisture, let a heating expert take care of your needs.
